

Week 5: Course Project –
Equity Impact Assessment
LAS 432 Assignment
Professor Richardson

Provide a framework for reducing hurdles that disadvantaged individuals may have in accessing and using innovative technologies, as well as to analyze technology through the perspective of social justice and equity.

The concept that all persons are created equal is characterized as equity (Martin & Nakayama, 2020). The cultural, financial, geographical, political, and physical surroundings in which individuals are born, mature, live, work, and age is determinants of equality, and they are important for all people to prosper, regardless of color, class, gender, spoken language, or sexual orientation. When barriers exist that hinder individuals and groups from obtaining these conditions, inequities are produced.

My equity assessment must address the following goal for my Course project. My project covers what it takes to facilitate the access and administration of healthcare by having the software that can enable everyone to have access to their records digitally and can receive the necessary medical assistance they need, from anywhere in the world, with this type of access.

EPIC Care has an enormous database, which tracks vital information of over 45% of the people's medical and vital statistic information in the United States alone. Not including around the world. In this case, all of the above mentioned would benefit from the software and services offered since they have never before had the access that EPIC is now providing.

This software allows communication throughout the healthcare community of credentialed professionals, testing, results, pharmacy, and other ancillary types of healthcare professions the ability to communicate thru varying fields of medical professionals and specialists to give the patient the proper assessment of their condition and the knowledge they need to manage their healthcare on a day-to-day basis. This program enables those who have never had healthcare before, the opportunity to have the same care as anyone else, regardless of socioeconomic status, race, beliefs, or religion.
