

1. The nurse in the mental health setting is conducting research with a health care provider about the effects of family dynamics on readmission rates which factor most important when selecting participants.
  - Offer amazon gift card for participation.
  - Informed consent
  - Ask staff members to recruit willing participants.
  - Place a flyer above the research in common location so that all clients have an equal opportunity to participate

2. Common process of peer review include:
  - The creation and study of new metrics based on the social web for analyzing and informing scholarship
  - an indicator of a researcher's lifetime in their field
  - selecting research for conferences and evaluating research manuscripts for publication
  - a way to measure the visibility of research by calculating a ratio of current citation of the journal to all citations in the same time.

3. Which criteria is the most important rational for a specific research study?
  - Demands of the research question
  - the expected outcome of the research
  - funding available
  - the population being studied.

4. The nurse is developing a research question. Which criteria is a poor research question?
  - Arm exercises in the preoperative.
  - Patient admitted to the hospital.
  - Patients 3 days after a radical mastectomy.
  - Compared to arm exercises taught in the postoperative.

5. The community Health nurse is working on a teaching session about smoking cessation and looking for evidence-based practice related to this teaching topic. Which statement best