

Hello everyone! This week we are learning about translating research into practice. This is an important topic, as understanding and utilizing research in practice is why we conduct research in the first place! As a nurse, we translate research findings constantly, such as reading and understanding lab results/ tests. Being able to integrate research findings into clinical practice allows for smooth and continuous patient care.