

I am so thankful to make it through this session. With this class being more self-taught than I would actually care for it wasn't bad at all. This week Was all about quality improvement based on the expats that were completed.

Asking sure the patients are being kept safe as best as possible and using the right techniques and monitoring. I look forward to actually implementing everything I learned in this class as it relates to patient care, it I don't think research nursing is for me at all. How about you guys? Enjoy you last week and good luck!
