

Week 1: Creating a Philosophy of Leadership - Yellow Group

Please note, all NR534 discussions occur in small groups. For this reason, please review the Small Group Discussion Grading Rubric \(Links to an external site.\).

Part 1: Individual

Whether or not it is written or verbally articulated, everyone has an idea or belief system about leadership that influences their behavior as a leader and a follower. Many factors combine that inform your leadership philosophy.

- Discuss your personal beliefs, values, experiences, and current leadership principles and trends that influence your leadership philosophy.
- In 3-5 sentences clearly articulate your personal leadership philosophy. This should begin with, "My philosophy of leadership is. "
- Describe how your leadership philosophy relates to the position and the organization within which you currently work. How does it affect the work you do, how you make decisions, and the culture you promote?

Week1: Individual post

Hello Dr. Mitchell and yellow group,

I currently work in a leadership role. My role has expanded to include coverage of two acute care hospitals case management departments. Leadership is challenging. I believe self-reflection and subsequent development of personal skills, allow others to see your authentic side enhancing a trust building relationships with followers. I appreciate other that have walked before me and past on their tips and knowledge. Be authentic fosters a healthy work environment (Raso, 2019).
