

Blue horizontal bar

Blue horizontal bar

Blue horizontal bar

Blue horizontal bar

Which of the following is a long-acting insulin?

A. It is primarily used to control postprandial hyperglycemia.

B. It is a “peak-less” insulin.

C. The prolonged duration is due to slow dissociation from albumin.

D. It should not be used in patients with lispro or glulisine.

A Patient with type treated with insulin de
the patient needs addi
of postprandial glucose
is most appropri

A. Insulin

B. NPH In

C. Insulin

D. NPH/

70/30 insu

A patient with type 1 diabetes is prescribed insulin glulisine as part of his treatment. How should the patient be advised to take the insulin?

- A. Every morning at 8 a.m.
- B. Every night at 8 p.m.
- C. Anytime during the day.
- D. 15-30 minutes before meals.