

Week 2 Discussion: Important Aspects Of Project Management

Reflect on projects that you have been involved in during your career or in everyday life. We have all been involved in projects such as buying a house, renting an apartment, remodeling, and so on. You may also have participated in projects at work, such as workload assessments, initiating an electronic health record, or even pursuing a major capital project such as building a new unit or facility.

What do you feel is the most important aspect of project management to ensure a successful project? Provide a rationale for your answer.

Dr. Williams and Class,

Within my experience in planning projects, I feel the most critical aspect for a successful project is developing the team and stakeholders. Anyone can have a great idea, but if you do not have the right team members and backers for buy-in, the project will not go anywhere. It would be best to incorporate different ideas and ways of thinking to cultivate creativity in bringing the project to life. The team members chosen are vital to the success of any project and bring different talents and skills for execution and successful completion. In our reading, Abyad (2019) found that it is primarily due to ineffective communication and the inability to identify the complications when projects fail. Glassman & Withall (2011) state the importance in
