

WEEK 3

Topic 3 Discussion 1

Assessment Description

Identify a population that you will likely serve as an advanced registered nurse that you think is particularly vulnerable to issues of health disparity/inequity. Discuss the contribution of your particular specialty to health promotion and disease prevention for this population and how health promotion aligns with the Christian worldview principle of striving to further the good of society through education.

Answer:

The population that I would serve that would be particularly vulnerable to issues of health disparity/inequity would be low-income minorities. As a Nurse Educator, I would be working with students of all backgrounds. I would need to be comfortable with understanding the differences in cultures, ethnicities, and environments. Patients are more comfortable with nurses, students, or healthcare providers in general that are more like them (American Nurses Association, 2023). Nurse Educators can ensure that they can care for the population they serve by encouraging and mentoring a more diversified group of students and nurses. Educational institutions can strive to have more instructors that are diversified and that in turn may attract more diverse students to be a part of the
