

Course NURS-6501N-24,Advanced Pathophysiology Summer Qtr 06/01-08/23-PT27

Test

Exam - Week 11 Final

Time Elapsed 41 minutes out of 2 hours

Results Submitted Answers
Displayed

- Question 1

0 out of 0 points

When completing this exam, did you comply with Walden University's Code of Conduct including the expectations for academic integrity?

Selected Yes
Answer:

- Question 2

1 out of 1 points

A patient has primary immune thrombocytopenic purpura (ITP) and is hospitalized after a bleeding episode. What treatment does the healthcare provider anticipate being ordered for this patient?

Selected Infusion of IVIG
Answer:

- Question 3

1 out of 1 points

A child has Duchenne muscular dystrophy. What complication does the healthcare professional teach the parents is most important to control?

Selected Answer: Respiratory infection

- Question 4

1 out of 1 points

A baby is born with a myelomeningocele and needs urgent surgery to repair the defect. The parents want to take the baby home instead. What does the healthcare professional tell the parents about the purpose of this surgery?

Selected 1cAdditional nervous system damage will occur the longer we wait. 1d
Answer:

- Question 5

1 out of 1 points

A student is learning about pelvic inflammatory disease (PID). What information does the student clarify with a study partner as being correct?

Selected Such an inflammation may result in permanent changes to the ciliated epithelium
Answer: of the fallopian tubes.

- Question 6

1 out of 1 points

A patient had a seizure that consisted of impaired consciousness and the appearance of a dreamlike state. How does the healthcare professional chart this episode?

Selected Complex focal
Answer: seizure

- Question 7

1 out of 1 points

Which spinal tract carries the most nociceptive information?

Selected Lateral
Answer: spinothalamic

- Question 8

1 out of 1 points

Which condition is considered a clinical cause of amenorrhea?

Selected Failure to Answer: ovulate

- Question 9