

WEEK 1: PROJECT MANAGEMENT AND PROJECT SELECTION

There are needs arising for organizations as they set their business strategy and establish their strategic goals. It is critical to align the projects selected with the strategies and goals established.

- How have you seen projects used in your company, organization, or personal life?
- What methods of project management does your company use? Do they work?
- Why does project charter so significant for the project? Please explain your rationale.

You are to submit three quality posts over 3 different days, with the first post on or before Wednesday for each graded discussion topic.

Professor,

Working as an Assistant Project Manager for a large electrical contract, I get to have to opportunity to see large high rise condo building get built by the hundreds. As each building is design and developed each project manager has their own way of manager the project but holds to a certain best practices. At the beginning of each project baseline, the project is designed, estimated, coordinated and budgeted. Once all the information is verified it is upload to a virtual dashboard were milestones are set, scheduling, potential KPI's and risk are noted along with the Project Charter that provides the project in its entirety. This is vital to understand the overall project risk, budget, GP and the contractual obligations.
