

Take a moment to explore your new classroom and introduce yourself to your fellow classmates. What are you excited about learning? What do you think will be most challenging?

Greetings Everyone My Name is Dante J Tardivo I am 22 years old, and I have ADHD, it is great to meet all of you. Even with my condition I try my best to stay focused and to sit still. I have been in school for a couple of years now. My goal is to obtain my bachelor's Degree right now and then work on getting a Doctorate's later. I feel like I am beginning school all over again with the new changes that is going on. I swear I should be used to the changes of online services lol, since I am surrounded by electronics. Currently I am looking for a new car to buy since my old one sounds like it is about to break. I am excited to understand how our mental processes, brain functions, and behavior function. I was going to make this my program of study but changed my mind because I saw a course about social media. Since the new generation is all about technology and being on social media like Snapchat, Instagram, Tiktok, why not take advantage of this opportunity and to study about it. The most challenging thing about this course will be the reading I can just imagine that there is a tone of material to go over.
