

PSYCH 110N Week 1 Assignment: Psychological Perspectives Comparison

The five major perspectives of modern psychology are important to understand because they are central to other theories throughout the course. For example, you will learn about them again in our discussion about personality disorders. For this assignment, using the Psychological Perspectives Comparison template, fill in the table with names of people and main ideas, as well as what you find compelling and what you don't about each of the five major perspectives of psychology.

Your chart should:

- Include at least 2 bullet points in each box
- Bullet points do not have to be in complete sentences (but should have enough explanation for each to be understandable)
- Should be in your own words (don't just copy/paste from the book or a website – break down the ideas to explain what these perspectives are all about)
- Should include a list of references used in APA format following the template (this list should include your lessons and your textbook).
- In-text citations are not required (remember, this will be in your own words so don't copy/paste)
- Be informed by content from your readings, lessons, and research this week
